HEADTEACHER'S MESSAGE

Dear Parents and Carers

This week saw our Sports Captains deliver an informative assembly linked to the exciting new sports they will be leading every day on the grids at lunchtime. They spoke eloquently about the benefits of participating in these lunchtime sports and even made posters to display in the classes. We hope that lots of our pupils will make the most of these lunchtime sports on offer.

On Thursday evening, myself, Mrs Maher and Mrs Munro attended the Newbury in Bloom presentation evening. Within the schools' category, we came second and were awarded a Silver Gilt Certificate. The school is incredibly proud of this achievement and thank all the pupils, parents and staff who supported our Newbury in Bloom entry. We are keen to enter next year and see if we can achieve the ultimate goal of winning best school in category. To help us with this, we have already talked about erecting a small greenhouse on site to grow our own plants from seeds. If anyone has an unwanted greenhouse (not glass) and would be happy to donate to the school, please let the office know.

This weekend, Speenhamland School is being promoted in the education tent at the Newbury Show. Our theme is outdoor learning and we have a wonderful collection of work and photos to showcase to the wider community. Please pop along and see our stall!

Finally, a polite reminder about lateness. We have been back for our first full week, and already we are noticing a significant number of children who are arriving late. This in turn becomes an unauthorised absence due to the register being closed and affects your child's overall attendance

Remember

UNIFORM (Hairbands)

Please ensure that children's hairbands are navy, or another dark discreet colour.

HEADLICE

It's not always possible to prevent lice, but below are some tips for spotting them early!

- Once a week take a peek. Check your child's head regularly with a fine-toothed detection comb.
- If you spot lice, check the rest of the family and treat all infected heads at the same time.
- Avoid head-to-head contact and sharing brushes/combs with infected people.

PUPIL'S INCREDIBLE WORK

Our Reception children have settled so well into their new school and are getting more familiar with our routines. We've seen some lovely friendships being built and friendships from nurseries continuing to grow. We're sharing all about ourselves through circle times and talking about our families, interests and what we like or dislike.

The children are developing their independence by being encouraged to take their water bottle out of their bag in the mornings and put their own jumpers or cardigans on when needed.

We've also started our rolling snack in our snack area where the children wash their hands, get a plate, choose their fruit and get milk if they choose to drink it.

They then sit with their friends to talk and socialise while enjoying their snack. Afterwards, they put their fruit peel in the food waste bin and some children are even washing their own plate!

Upper juniors made Mayan headdresses to help them get into character for writing their Mayan myths.

Two delightful pieces of narrative story writing from Poppy and Remi in Hawthorn based on the book 'Flood'.

Sophie gripped on to her cat because her dog made her ^{2nd} happy. She grasped on to her Samiroute biscuits because she liked them. And then she seized on to her teddy because it made her feel safe. The rain ~~eralel~~ roared loudly like a boom as a loud sire work when it hits the biyetisul, blue sky. The rain sounded like a riging sire alarm. Her hand reached out emotionally as she was being driven away from her cumby, coulersull bed and crying at the same time.

Sophie cluched some chocolate bars because she was getting hungry. Jack seized a bottle of water because he got thirsty. Sophie also got her favorite teddy bear it was pink with orange spots. The rain splashed loudly on the mossy roof like a pear of chattering symbols. The rain splatted loudly on the vibrant roof like an exploding fire work. Her ~~hous~~ hand eyes started to drip water emotionally as she was driven away from her vibrant house and said "bye" in an lonely voice.
